Unlike last year, the weather did not bring us an early end to “winter,” so let’s hope spring starts soon. You still can’t call spring complete without our annual gathering in Nisswa! The Minnesota Chapter of the American Public Works Association will be holding our Spring Conference from May 8 - 10, 2013, at Grand View Lodge on the shores of beautiful Gull Lake. Your conference committee has once again succeeded in forming a program that is sure to satisfy your needs in many areas.

Professional development, management, and leadership tools - Our Thursday evening keynote speaker is Al Newman, who helped the Minnesota Twins win two Major League Baseball World Series titles. He will use his knowledge from playing professional baseball and coaching on several levels to help us learn how to obtain success and reach our goals with desire, dedication, and determination. Those three “D’s” are also part of his teaching to youth in various athletic programs. Al helps lead Newmie Rewards, whose ultimate goal is to raise funds for sports teams and other programs (www.newmierewardsllc.com). On Thursday morning Petra Marquart (www.petramarquart.com) will talk to us first about The Power of Service, sharing why service matters to public works professionals. Teaching us how to be at our best every day, she will then focus on Championship Performance, sharing how our sense of self affects our ability to perform and influence. She is a dynamic and electrifying speaker you can’t afford to miss!

Broader Perspective - You have likely heard about corporate and public/private groups and efforts such as the Itasca Group and the state Transportation Finance Advisory Committee (TFAC). These are part of a broad-based effort to advocate for a reasonable response to the lack of ability to fund needed infrastructure improvements. We will hear about the Private Perspective on Infrastructure Needs from high-profile representatives in the private sector.

Governmental Updates - We have once again secured our friends and leaders at the League of Minnesota Cities, the Transportation Alliance, and the Minnesota Department of Transportation to update us on ongoing or potential changes to law and policy at the state level. Given the timing of the conference relative to the legislative session, these speakers never fail to provide up-to-the-minute news on activities and progress at the Capitol.

APWA Refresher - We will hear from the APWA Regional Director Larry Stevens on Wednesday evening, and anticipate attendance at the conference by other national dignitaries. In addition, we will once again host the Leadership Academy graduation ceremony and hear updates on some of the strategic initiatives of the Minnesota Chapter. These sessions touch on the function and purpose of APWA, and renew our sense of commitment and appreciation for our great organization.

But most importantly, the Spring Conference gives us all a chance to come together, away from our daily menu of communication and management tasks. The ability to connect to our peers in a relaxed atmosphere, away from interruptions at the office, is the real value of the conference. Ideas are shared and relationships are built on a foundation of time together: at meals, at cabins, and at events such as the Camp Ripley Facility tour. In today’s environment of increased demands on budget and time, the Spring Conference is a valuable cog in the development of any public works professional.

See you in Nisswa!

Coach “D” Desire, Dedication, and Determination

Al Newman

As a public speaker, Al share’s knowledge gained from his parents, teachers, mentors, and teammates on being successful not only as an individual but also as a team player. Each of us strives to be champions or the best at whatever we do! The challenge is having the work ethic to endure setbacks along the way. Yes, failure is a part of obtaining success but with desire, dedication, and determination you can reach your goals!

The Power of Service

Petra Marquart, Petra Marquart and Associates

At the core of our work lies service. No matter how complex or difficult the issues we deal with may be, in the end, we work to make life better for the people of Minnesota. However, because of the nature of our work, sometimes the things needed to make things better in the long run may make things worse for some people in the short run. How we deal with people, the way we act, and the way we present ourselves during these times reflects the quality of our service and influences the cooperation of our customers along the way.

In this session, Petra Marquart, customer service expert and author, will share why service matters to public works professionals, the impact of service – both good and bad, the cornerstones of service, and how to choose to be at your best every day.

9:30 Break

9:45 Championship Performance

Petra Marquart, Petra Marquart and Associates

Every day, through every word and in every action, we choose to perform at our best or we choose not to. In this session, Petra Marquart will share how our sense of self affects our ability to perform and influence our day-to-day decisions. We will discuss the seven steps that need to be taken to fully embrace the power to perform and the impact self-esteem plays on that performance. In addition, we will explore the steps to restore the personal power that drives performance and sets our sights on consistency and excellence.

Camp Ripley Facility Tour

On the way to our conference destination of Grand View each year, most of us pass Camp Ripley along TH 371. Camp Ripley has long been an intriguing and important location and resource for the State of Minnesota. Would you like to join us for a tour of the Camp's public works and military facilities?

Camp Ripley is a 53,000-acre (210 km²) military and civilian training facility operated by the Minnesota National Guard. The State of Minnesota purchased 12,000 acres (49 km²) of land to be used for military training. The site was officially named Camp Ripley in December 1930. The State of Minnesota realized in the 1950s what a prized resource Camp Ripley was, so the State gradually bought more and more land to bring it to its 53,000-acre site it is today. The Camp is used for training by the National Guard, Minnesota

State Patrol, Minnesota Wing of the Civil Air Patrol, MnDNR, and several foreign exchange military training programs from Norway, Canada, Finland, and the Netherlands.

This tour will take our group on a walking tour of the wastewater plant for 30 minutes. Then, the group will go to the Camp's TACC Building 11-1 and staff will present a 45-minute environmental brief, sharing their green initiatives and projects. The tour will conclude with a stop at the Minnesota Military Museum, which is housed on the Camp grounds.

Minnesota Department of Transportation Update

Moderator: April Crockett, MnDOT Metro District

Charlie Zelle, Commissioner, Minnesota Department of Transportation (invited)

We often hear our public officials talking about the need to update and expand our public infrastructure, but in the next breath they talk about the cost of any improvement. In this presentation we will hear from representatives of the private sector who will tell us we can't afford to wait. The Itasca Project is an employer-led civic alliance drawn together by an interest in new and better ways to address Minneapolis/St. Paul regional issues that impact our economic competitiveness and quality of life.
